Preface

This is the third edition of A Directory of Neighborhood Health Centers. It has been compiled in response to requests from hospitals, state and private agencies, and consumers. This expanded edition includes non-profit community-based health centers across Massachusetts and an introduction to the neighborhood health center concept.

The Directory is intended to help consumers find quality health care services and to help anyone referring patients for health care locate an adequate source.

Each health center submitted the information about its center. Not every center included is a true neighborhood health center with a community board. However, each facility has developed in response to a shortage of medical care in its area and tries to be responsive to the needs of its immediate population.

The information is up-to-date as of June, 1976, to the best of our knowledge. Because many centers are still in the growing stages, fees, services, hours etc. may change. Selected fees have been included where possible to give the consumer an idea of the cost of services. Each center sets its own payment schedule and alters it as necessary.

This project was directed by Patricia Ward, with editorial assistance from Judith Kubzansky and graphics assistance from Lawrence Holoway. The following people provided technical assistance: Edward Grimes, Frances Kieffer, Leo McCarron, and Robert Morgan. The work of the Directory Committees for the 1971 and 1972 editions and the authors of the Children's Hospital NHC Directory is gratefully acknowledged.

The Massachusetts League of Neighborhood Health Centers is a unique alliance of consumers and providers organized in 1972 to establish cooperation among its member centers and to create a greater public awareness of NHCs' special advantages and interests.

Mass. League of NHCs' activities include:

Technical assistance to NHCs on fiscal management and administration to help NHCs achieve administrative effectiveness.

Research into changing health care realities and their effect on NHCs. Includes study of federal and state legislation pertinent to NHCs and ambulatory health care.

Negotiations with state regulatory agencies on licensure and reimbursement issues.

Data collection, manpower, and information clearinghouse.

Publication of newsletter, marketing, and media relations for NHCs.

Membership in the Mass. League of Neighborhood Health Centers is open to NHCs, individuals, and agencies.

Introduction

Neighborhood Health Centers (NHCs) began appearing in the 1960s in response to the decreasing availability of health care in inner-city and rural areas. Increasingly, medical students were choosing to practice specialized medicine and general practitioners were moving to the suburbs. Many neighborhoods found themselves without family doctors, with hospital Emergency Rooms and Outpatient Departments as their only sources of care.

NHCs were designed to offer a program of comprehensive health services under one roof in underserved communities with the involvement and participation of the community. Local hospitals, teaching hospitals, and health departments joined with community health groups to develop primary care services outside the hospital setting. The idea was to treat people rather than disease — to offer personalized, accessible, quality care for common health problems.

NHCs make good sense: They are in the neighborhood, of the neighborhood, for the neighborhood, and by the neighborhood. NHCs come in all sizes and shapes. Each center is unique precisely because it is rooted in a specific community.

There are, with a few exceptions, no income restrictions at NHCs. Most centers are open to everyone, regardless of income or address. Some services covered by special grants are restricted. Geographic restrictions are decided on by NHC community board members. Interpreters are generally available on request for non-English-speaking patients.

Medical Services

NHCs are staffed by physicians, physician extenders (physician assistants and nurse practitioners), and nurses. NHC medical personnel are highly trained professionals who have a special interest in community-oriented health care. Physicians at health centers generally are specialists in internal medicine, pediatric medicine, gynecology/obstetrics, or family practice. Nurse practitioners specialize in pediatric, adult, or geriatric medicine.

More specialized services at health centers are delivered by dermatologists, psychiatrists, podiatrists, ophthalmologists, optometrists, dentists, surgeons, etc. Social workers, nutritionists, counselors, dental hygienists, speech and hearing and other therapists, and family health workers also deliver services at health centers. Back-up services are provided by teaching hospitals, community hospitals, and municipal hospitals.

When to Use a NHC

If you choose a neighborhood health center as your primary source of health care, register at the center as soon as possible. It is best not to wait until you are sick.

NHC services are by prior appointment unless otherwise noted. Walk-in patients are accepted as time allows. Patients see the same doctor or nurse on each visit. Medicaid, Medicare, and other insurance cards should always be brought along for billing purposes.

Most health centers have 24-hour coverage in case you become ill when the center is closed. However, NHCs are not equipped to handle large-scale accidents, broken bones, heart attacks, or strokes. If such an event occurs, go immediately to your nearest hospital.

Hospitalization

NHCs make arrangements for hospitalization of their patients. Each health center is affiliated with one or more hospitals. A patient who prefers a different hospital should let the doctor know.

Post-hospitalization care is provided at the health center. If home care is needed, the health center will make the arrangements.

Fees

Charges for services at NHCs are based on (1) the cost of operating the center, (2) the funding sources available to the center, (3) the general income level of each center's target population. Charges for dental services at most centers are based on the Medicaid fee schedule. NHCs make every effort to adjust their fees to the satisfaction of their patients. A financial counselor or patient advocate will work out a payment plan when necessary.

Rights of Patients at NHCs

You have the right to be treated respectfully, to be addressed by your proper name, to ask questions and receive helpful responses.

You have the right to privacy. In a health center you should be able to talk with your doctor, nurse, or other health worker in private and know that the information you supply will not be overheard or given out without your permission. Your health center records are confidential.

You have the right to know who is responsible for your care, to talk with that doctor and any others who give you care and ask them questions that concern you about your health. You have the right to receive all the information necessary for you to understand your medical problems and to receive adequate instruction in self-care and maintenance of health. You have the right to bring or ask for an interpreter.

You have the right to refuse any prescribed treatment for yourself or your family. You will be informed of the medical consequences of this action and the health center shall be cleared of responsibility for your illness. You still, of course, have the right to receive the best help that the health center can offer under the circumstances.

You have the right to change your doctor at any time.

You have the right to examine and receive an explanation of your health center bill regardless of payment.

Responsibilities of Patients at NHCs

You have a responsibility to keep appointments or telephone when you cannot keep a scheduled appointment; to bring with you information about past illnesses, hospitalizations, medications, and other matters relating to your health; to be open and honest with the provider about the instructions you receive concerning your health, i.e. if you don't understand instructions or feel you cannot follow them.

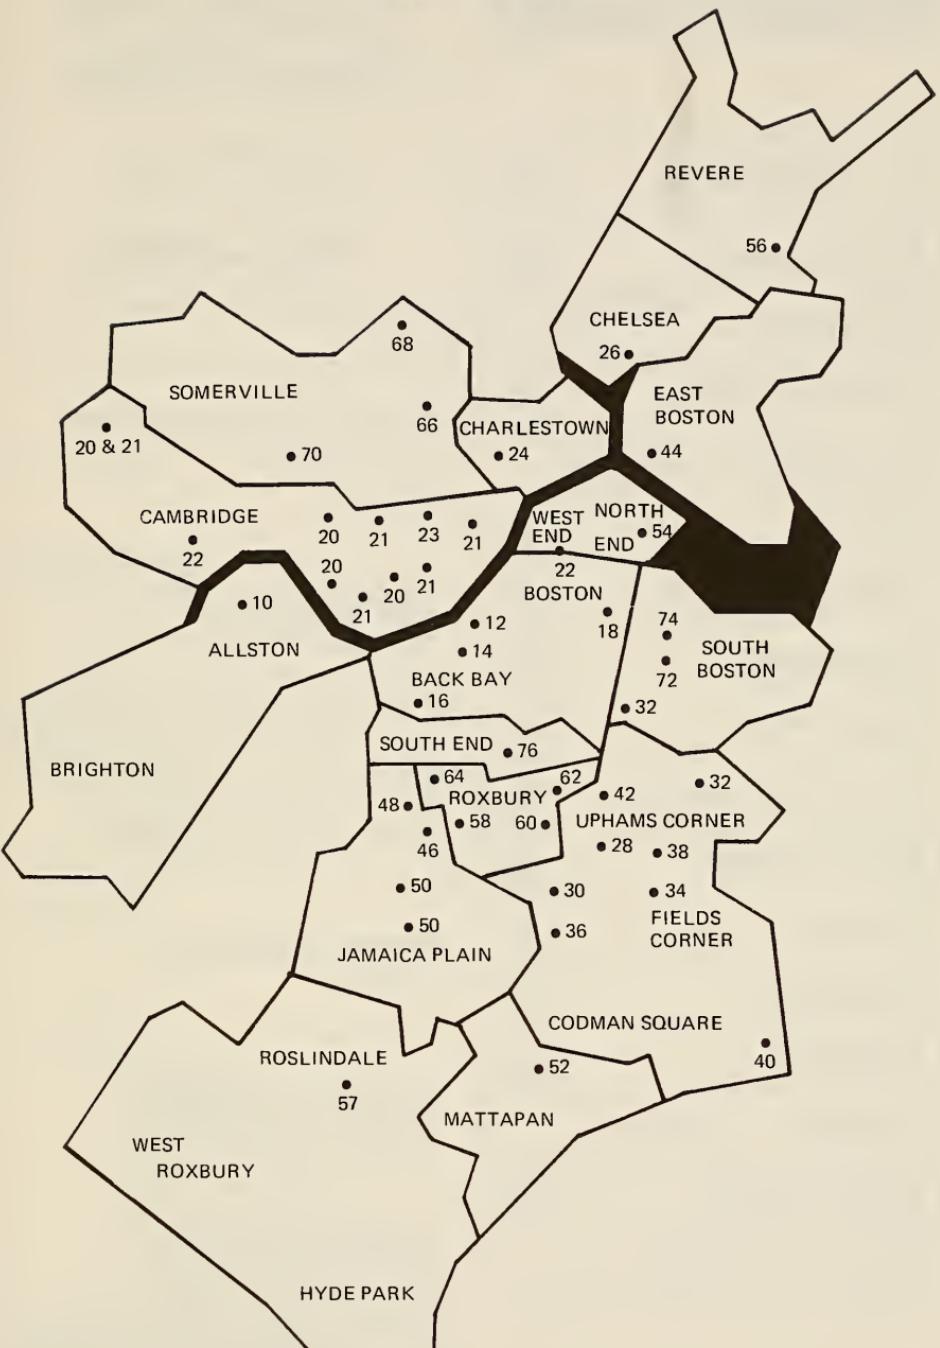

You have a responsibility to be prompt about payment of health center charges, to provide the necessary information for insurance processing of your charges, and to be prompt about asking any questions you may have concerning the charges.

You have a responsibility as a health center consumer to participate in health center activities and on committees as your time allows.

Massachusetts General Laws Annotated Chapter 111, Section 70

Medical Records at hospitals and clinics licensed by the Department of Public Health or supported in whole or in part by DPH may be inspected by the patient to whom they relate. A copy shall be furnished upon the patient's request and payment of a reasonable fee.
